GERMANS AGAIN DRIVEN BACK IN DESPERATE BATTLE OF THE AISNE; ALLIES ARE GAINING

General Von Kluck Apparently in a Desperate Position.

FRENCH PATCH THEIR DEFENSES

Hold Through Which Invaders Might Have Routed Their Forces Is Stopped; Russians Begin Siege of Cracow; Struggle to Be Desperate.

By Associated Press.
LONDON, October 2.—Unless all signs are away the German armies in France, or at any rate most of them, are nearing the completion of their round trip. This is held here, is the only conclusion—hinted at even by the Berlin newspapers—to be drawn from the reports, both official and otherwise, of those on or near the scene of action.

It is evident that the progress of the allies on their left is considerable while the hole through which the Germans might have pierced the French fortresses on the Meuse river side has been stopped.

The force battling around the heights of Roye, northwest of Soissons, seems to have ended in favor of the French. The battle was captured by General von Kluck's men on Wednesday but on Friday the allies regained control of the position.

Antwerp, temporarily the Belgian capital, ought to be capable of making a long defense. King Albert is a romantic figure of the war in this quarter. He constantly goes into the danger zone and his determination, fearlessness and activity, recall those of Stadtholder William in the siege of Leyden.

That the battle of the Yser, which opened yesterday will be a long and arduous struggle is evident. General von Hindenburg the German commander who seemed notable success in Eastern Prussia against the invading Russians, has taken supreme command of the combined German and Austrian forces. These undoubtedly are a formidable army, though the allied forces are virtually all consumed.

The German headquarters staff reports dismiss the situation both in this and the Belgian theatres with the curt "no chance."

From Petrograd it is officially asserted that "the Russian troops continue to drive the enemy from the borders of Suwalki and Lomza and there has been continually determined fighting west of Smolensk. The German troops attacking Ostrova are repulsed and the Russian troops are concentrating in the western districts of the provinces of Petrograd and Kielev in Russian Poland."

VON KLUCK'S ARMY IS IN DESPERATE STRAITS.
By Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—A correspondent at Calais who has returned to that city from a tour in the vicinity of the allies' left, says:

"Without disclosing military secrets I can say that I have seen many things to remove my misgivings as to the outcome of the battle. The moment is near when the curtain will be lifted on the greatest drama ever seen in war."

"The position of the German right wing on Wednesday was such that a portion lying between Langue and Chantilly was in extreme danger. Above Chantilly the German line, which a few days ago faced westward, are now facing northwest and have been bent back on the line of Chantilly, Cambrai and Valenciennes."

"On Sunday a German patrol was captured near Chantilly. The fate of the Germans was due to a shortage of horses. The men said that they had nothing to eat for some days. They belonged to General von Kluck's command. It has been apparent throughout that General von Kluck's position was made more precarious by the crushing on his left of reinforcements from the center and left by the German general staff."

BERLIN SAYS GERMANS MAKE STEADY PROGRESS.
By Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 2.—According to a dispatch from the German general staff, the German army has made today the greatest battle in France is all undecided. The Germans are described as hammering the French position at many points by local attacks. The attempt of the allies to break through the German line has been repulsed. The latest losses have been in the Argentine sector. The Germans continue to make steady progress.

In the fighting before Antwerp the German army has placed two divisions. The German forces captured 10 German guns from the French at Belgium.

In the eastern arena of the war, the Russian offensive movement from the Niemen river against the Germans in the province of Suwalki, is reported to have failed. It is officially reported that the Russian force at Cracow, it has been reported, is being ordered by German units September 2.

The action in France, the scene of the most important operations, is being watched with the greatest interest by the German general staff.

all going on at the same time are taken in Berlin to indicate that the Germans do not lack men.

A statement from Berlin says there are 2,000 Russian officers, including 13 generals, at present being held in the various detention camps in Germany.

TERRIFIC BATTLE IS SWINGING TO NORTH.
By Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 2.—An official statement issued by the war office today says that terrible fighting continues incessantly near Roye, where the Germans have been reinforced. The statement says:

"On our left wing the battle continues with terrific fighting in the region of Roye, where the Germans appear to have concentrated important reinforcements. The action extends more and more to the north. The front of the battle line extends now into the region south of Arras."

"Upon the Meuse, the Germans attempted at night to throw a bridge across the river near St. Mihiel. The bridge was destroyed by guns."

"In the Woëvre district our offensive continues and progresses step by step, notably in the region between Apremont and St. Mihiel."

"On the remainder of the front there have been attempted only partial operations here and there."

BELGIAN MACHINE GUNS NOW DOWN GERMAN.
By Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—The Germans have suffered heavily everywhere under the well directed machine gun fire of the Belgians. According to a statement from Antwerp:

"At the Wavre and St. Catherine forts along the German front must be counted by thousands. At several points the corpses lie in heaps. The companies have been exterminated while the other troops were driven back at the point of the bayonet."

700,000 IN RUSSIA.
By Associated Press.

LONDON, October 2.—Seven hundred thousand persons in Russia are facing starvation according to Hugh Gibson, secretary of the American committee there, who is now in this city.

The supply of flour in the Belgian capital will be exhausted today and other staples are virtually all consumed.

AMERICAN CONSUL IN DANGER FROM BOMBS.
By Associated Press.

LONDON, October 2.—A dispatch from Belgium dated Wednesday, says: "Rhineland was the scene of a fierce artillery duel this morning during the bombardment of the American consulate, William Dierckx, had a narrow escape. A shell wrecked half of his residence over which the Stars and Stripes were flying."

A dispatch from Paris a few days ago said that the American consul, William Dierckx, his wife, the daughter and his son, were the only Americans left in Rhineland. Major Dierckx, the military attaché of Paris, visited Dierckx recently to supply him with funds.

Dierckx reported that while nearly every house in the quarter in which Dierckx had been destroyed by shells, Dierckx's home oddly enough had been left intact.

Dierckx said that Dierckx and his family spent most of their time during the bombardment of the past fortnight in a wine cellar 100 feet underground.

PENROSE ANSWERS COLONEL'S ATTACK UPON THE BOSSES

Shows T. R. is Under Thumb of Plinn, Worst of All.

RAPS THE BULL MOOSE LEADER

Declares Pittsburg Contractor-Boss Has Sold Out Bull Moose in Hope of Landing Highway Contracts; Says Plinn Will Become a Democrat.

PHILADELPHIA, October 2.—United States Senator Joseph R. Penrose issued a formal statement last night in reply to an address delivered by Theodore Roosevelt at a Washington party early here last night in which "Colonel Roosevelt" condemned "political bosses" and said: "The men who have surrendered their will and their judgment into the keeping of Mr. Plinn or Mr. Penrose or Mr. Murphy or Mr. Sullivan are not fit to be free citizens of a free republic."

In his statement Senator Penrose said in part: "I cannot think that Mr. Roosevelt really means what he says when he uses the time-worn and now meaningless phrase 'political bosses.' He really cannot believe that the people of Pennsylvania are so stupid as to be caught by these phrases under the present circumstances in view of the fact that Mr. Roosevelt has been delivered bodily into the control of one of the most discredited and notorious municipal bosses who has ever appeared in American politics. He seems to have surrendered entirely to William Plinn, whose affiliations with crooked political contractors constitute one of the most conspicuous features in the annals of corrupt politics."

"Mr. Plinn for many years was a political boss of the most notorious kind. During his tenure he assumed a very large fortune out of public contracts and the control of contracts in Pittsburg, which enabled him to appropriate all the franchises of that city for the advantage of himself and his associates. Long ago he was repudiated by the Republican party. He took up reform only after he had been utterly cast out with the hope of obtaining some kind of political control. He has been in the Washington or Progressive party in Pennsylvania so completely that he has destroyed it. The Washington party has no progressive state ticket to present to the voters."

"For a time Plinn contemplated nominating himself for governor but this was so abhorrent to all his associates that he was compelled to abandon that plan. His next step, doubtless, will be to turn Democrat, as opportunity, not principle, is his guide. It is commonly charged and not denied, and is generally believed, that Lewis has the promise of some reward for his action and that Plinn seeks to control the highway department with a view of securing contracts such as he has enjoyed for many years in Allegheny county. As a result Washington party voters are coming back in large numbers to the Republican party, refusing to be lured by any such corrupt bargaining."

"For 15 years I enjoyed Mr. Roosevelt's confidence to an unusual extent. I supported him in all his political efforts. After he had solemnly informed me that under no circumstances would he be a candidate for reelection to the presidency, I felt it my duty as a senator and Republican to support Mr. Taft, who was the President of the United States, his first nomination having been forced by Mr. Roosevelt upon the Republicans of the country by the most high-handed methods ever witnessed in any national convention."

"It was only after I expressed this right to support a candidate for the presidency, that I became a 'boss.'"

TOMORROW IS LAST DAY TO REGISTER, VOTERS MUST ACT

Less Than Half Qualified on the First Two Days; Rush Is Expected.

This is good advice for every voter who has failed to qualify for the November election. Less than half of the voters were enrolled on the first two days set aside for the purpose. If a normal vote is to be polled this fall, there will be a rush in all of the wards tomorrow. If any considerable number wait until evening to qualify, they run the risk of not being listed. The registers will be open until 10 P. M., but no longer. Those who have not been registered by then will be unable to vote. As it takes several minutes to register each voter, a rush in the last hour would result in a good many disappointed electors.

Every voter should bring his receipt to the polls. The tag receipts must be presented. According to the law, officials are taken when the receipts have been lost or destroyed. Voters will save themselves considerable annoyance if they bring their tag receipts to the polling places. On the first two days of the registration, dozens of voters had to either go home for their receipts or call on the tax collector for duplicates.

$10,000 SLANDER SUIT

Mrs. Annie Schomer Brings Action Against S. Scott Snader, Special to The Courier.

PITTSBURGH, October 2.—A $10,000 slander suit was instituted today against S. Scott Snader by Mrs. Annie Schomer, wife of George Schomer. Both parties to the suit are from Connellsville.

According to the bill, Mr. Snader is alleged to have said certain scandalous things to Mrs. Schomer, relative to herself and her children. It quotes certain utterances, on which the slander charge is based. There are 19 words in the two sentences, and for them Mrs. Schomer asks $10,000 damages, claiming that her reputation has been damaged to that extent.

The suit was entered by Attorney J. R. Goldsmith.

MAY OPEN OFFICE.

B. & O. Is Expected to Name an Agent at Casselman.

Special to The Courier.

ROCKWORTH, October 2.—It is reported that the Baltimore & Ohio will accept the station at Casselman which has been chosen for several months. Some time ago the citizens of Casselman began the circulation of a petition to be presented to the Interstate Commerce Commission asking the removal of the station, as the people of the town as well as the farmers in the vicinity were greatly inconvenienced by the closing of the station. It is thought that the petition, although not yet filed, will cause the railroad company to reopen the agency for traffic.

TWO ARE JAILLED.

Police Investigating Men on Whom Many Keys are Found.

Rosecoe Crelo and Joe Busch were sent to jail for 10 days by Alderman Fred Munk this morning on a charge of trespassing brought by the Baltimore & Ohio.

When the men were arrested last night by M. F. Wilner, special officer, a number of switch lock keys were found in their possession. The police are investigating the case further.

COLONIAL THEATRE TO OPEN SEASON OCTOBER 16

"Everywoman," the Celebrated Morality Play, Will Be First Attraction at the South Side House.

The Colonial Theatre will open its 1914-15 season on October 16 with "Everywoman," the celebrated morality play. This will be followed by a line of attractions, the character of which Colonial managers have not been able to secure in the past.

H. O. Keary, who purchased the theatre some months ago, will manage the playhouse. He recently returned from New York where he made arrangements to book attractions from the A. J. Jones Associated Theatres. He has been guaranteed high class attractions.

The several seasons past, the Colonial has been unfortunate. Last year Manager "Dad" Hall, who had the theatre in connection with the A. J. Jones Associated Theatres, was outwitted and playing them there, but he lost on the proposition. Now, however, the theatre is connected with a substantial agency, and its prospects of a successful season are bright. A number of music comedies that were formerly successes last year are coming during the winter.

A number of minor improvements to the theatre are contemplated. When the attractions are booked, the high school entertainment course, and a number of amateur productions will hold forth.

FOR LARGER PENSION FUND

Methodists Want to Take Better Care of Aged Pastors.

Action to the effect that the conference should not limit itself to $100,000 for the fund to care for aged ministers, widows of ministers and orphans, but should raise a larger sum, was taken at the annual session of the Pittsburgh conference of the Methodist Episcopal church yesterday at Rochester, Pa. It was decided that, as a smaller conference had pledged itself to raise $200,000 and a third had pledged to raise $500,000, the Pittsburgh conference, one of the largest in Methodism, should strive for a sum in excess of that already pledged. The conference already pledged to raise $100,000. The address of Bishop Christian yesterday morning was along the lines that the church should pension the ministers the same as a thankful country pensions its soldiers and aches for the widows and orphans of the war.

DESERVES TOUCHDOWN

Walter Camp Overrules Connellsville Football Official.

According to Walter Camp, the football authority North Union high school is entitled to the touchdown scored against Connellsville two weeks ago, but disallowed because "hiding on the yardline" was alleged.

The address of O. H. Herwick, state 13, Mr. Camp and the latter's reply is to the effect that "hiding" is anything unsportsmanlike, such as a player mingling with the crowd on the line, impersonating a lineman or other member of the team, or a player fielding a pass on the line, or a player, so long as he is on the field, however, the charge of "hiding" cannot be allowed.

Burd, the North Union end, took a pretty forward pass and ran about 50 yards, but he was called back for "hiding." It develops, however, that his play was perfectly legitimate.

NO GAME LIKELY

Connellsville's Football Prospects Are Not Very Encouraging.

There will be no game between Connellsville and Uniontown this year, for the simple reason that Uniontown has no team of any account and will not see fit to reconstitute of athletic relations. Had the issue been decided in favor of Connellsville, a challenge would have been given, but when North Union high school defeated Uniontown 12 to 7, it is all off.

Connellsville ran up a score of 33 and 34 last year, but by comparison of scores the locals could put it all over Uniontown.

In any event, it is doubtful whether athletic relations will be resumed between the two schools.

WILL APPLY TORCH.

Mrs. L. E. Marshall Will Fire the Stick at Dunbar.

Though employees at the Dunbar, Pa. mine state that they have received no information of the plans for blowing in the first stick preparations are being made by Dunbar residents to entertain General Manager E. E. Marshall and wife in the near future, and it is stated that Mrs. Marshall will apply the torch.

Usually the blowing in of the furnace is conducted with formal ceremony, but no announcement was made that this time there will be a blowing in. In the meantime, it is what is needed most to expedite the starting of operations.

LIBRARY BOOKS POPULAR.

Big Increase in Circulation During September.

The report of the Carnegie Free Library for the month of September, submitted this morning by the librarian, Miss Margaret Whitman, shows an increase of 674 over the month of September 1913. The total circulation was 7,239. In this is included the circulation at the branch station in the West side, which was 556, an increase of 47 over September of last year.

The branch station is now open on Monday and Thursday afternoons, and on Friday afternoons as heretofore.

TWO KILLED AND TWO INJURED IN CROSSING CRASH

Train No. 3 Strikes Auto at Fayette Street Uniontown.

CRAFT'S FAMILY THE VICTIMS

County Treasurer's Sister and Wife Meet Death; Daughter and Son-in-Law Are Hurt; Latter May Not Recover from His Serious Injuries.

Two persons were killed and two injured, one perhaps fatally, when train No. 3 on the Baltimore Ohio railroad struck an automobile at the Fayette street crossing in Uniontown at 9:30 this morning. The train was traveling at high speed, being about 20 minutes late. Engineer Stoppel did not see the automobile until it was too late, the crossing being near a sharp curve. The auto was completely demolished and the occupants hurled for yards.

THE DEAD.
MRS. MATILDA BRIDGE, 68, Franklin, Pa., sister of County Treasurer W. S. Craft, thrown 20 feet and killed instantly.

MRS. MARGARET CRAFT, wife of County Treasurer Craft, died at 10:30, soon after being admitted to the Uniontown Hospital.

THE INJURED.
EDWIN TOWNSEND, son-in-law of Captain Craft, driver of the car, not expected to recover.

MRS. SARIE TOWNSEND, wife of Edwin Townsend, condition not believed serious.

The Townsends live in Uniontown. Mr. Townsend is employed at the court house, in the office of his father-in-law. The party started towards the mountains in their Overland car, Mrs. Bridge, who was visiting her brother, Captain Craft, Mrs. Craft and Mr. and Mrs. Townsend made up the party.

The sharp curve obstructs the view of the track to some extent and Townsend, at the wheel of the machine, could not see the approaching train. Engineer Stoppel, it is said, was making fast time in an effort to make up some that had been lost on the trip from Fairmont. The curve also obstructed the view of the crossing. The engine struck the automobile fairly, it wrecked it completely. The pilot of the locomotive was shattered and the pieces had to be cleared away before the train could proceed.

The body of Mrs. Bridge was placed on the train and taken to the Uniontown station. The three injured persons were hurried to the Uniontown Hospital. Mrs. Craft was unconscious and died soon after her arrival there.

In addition to Engineer Stoppel, train No. 3, which is due in Connellsville at 9:35 A. M., was in charge of Conductor Charles Keefe and Fireman J. L. McDonald, all of Pittsburg.

Conductor Keefe would make no statement as to the speed of the train at the time of the accident, but eye-witnesses declared that it was excessive.

The Fayette street crossing is unprotected and has been the scene of probably a dozen fatal accidents during the past few years.

EAGAN MISSING AGAIN

Former Cop Here Is Believed to Be in Alabama.

According to reports received here, D. W. Eagan, former detective and station here, who left Dunbar and went to Bradnock has shipped out again and is now somewhere in Alabama. Mrs. Eagan is said to be endeavoring to have him brought back for non-support.

After Connellsville dispensed with Eagan's services, he became a patrolman in Dunbar. He was prosecuted by his wife, but they later effected a reconciliation and left there for Bradnock, where he had secured a job as policeman. Several suits for assault and battery are pending against him and he is under bond for appearance at court.

LOTS OF BIG QUILTS

Kittanning Woman's Work Fades Before Some Real Sewing.

A quilt containing 4,640 pieces, was thought to be a world's record, does not in any way compare with two quilts in the possession of Mrs. S. S. Snader of 511 South Pittsburg street.

Mrs. Snader writes that she has two quilts made by her mother, Mrs. Sarah Cuts of Westminster, Maryland. One of these, which was presented to Mrs. Snader, contains 20,360 pieces, and the other, made for her sister who is now dead, consists of 20,638 pieces. A third quilt made for Mrs. Snader's brother, contains even more patches than the other two.

Mrs. Cuts made one of these quilts for each of her three children, and apparently in each instance she broke a record for the number of pieces in it.

MOUNT PLEASANT

Special to The Courier.

MOUNT PLEASANT, October 2.—A surprise was afforded yesterday when it was learned that Miss K. A. Miller, superintendent of the hospital, and Herman Thomsen, had been married since August 28. That was the day following the graduation exercises at the hospital. Friends of Miss Miller had learned of her engagement, but did not know of her marriage. The wedding was celebrated at the Lutheran church with a quilling. Mrs. Thomsen made formal announcement of the marriage. Very nice refreshments were served following the quilling. Mr. and Mrs. Thomsen will make their home at Lawrenceville.

Mr. Levine went before Justice of the Peace Frank Fisher and said he had a bad check given him by Mr. W. C. Miller. Mr. Fisher held a hearing last evening and when Mr. W. C. Miller appeared he was told that the check was not cashed. Mr. Levine said he would not sue for the amount he owed Levine and with the same had given a check for $10 to the amount he owed Levine and for $15 to the amount he owed Levine. Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are ten.

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infant deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Doses, stimulants and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupify, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of J. C. F. Fitch. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of J. C. F. Fitch

HOW TO STOP
STOMACH TORMENT

Sound Advice From a Well-Known Physician.

Men and women who suffer from what they call dyspepsia, indigestion or just plain "stomach trouble" usually seek regular relief in the form of some potent pill or tablet, or other artificial aid. This, experience teaches me, is a serious error. In many cases out of ten, the distress is caused by the development of acids in the stomach—formed by the fermenting of the food. Instead of a digestant being required, something should be taken to dissolve or neutralize this acidity, when normal digestion will follow as a matter of course. This acid matter is distinctly poisonous and unless it is dissolved, digestion merely carries the mass of fermenting food from the stomach to the intestines, where its poison is absorbed by the blood and carried all over the body.

If all the great army of people who suffer after nearly every meal would make it a point to take a teaspoonful of "Bismarck Magnesia" in a quarter glass of water after each meal, there would be no formation of acidity and consequently no distress or discomfort. Bismarck Magnesia, heartburn, belching, bloating, etc., would be a thing of the past. "Bismarck Magnesia" is a physician's prescription. It is inexpensive and can be obtained at any drug store. It is prepared for just such trouble and the best proof of its efficiency is that it enters in five minutes from the time it enters the stomach, simply by dissolving the acids that have been formed there. Its action is absolutely harmless.—Adv.

JUST TRY RHEUMA,
NO CURE, NO PAY

This is the Basis on Which All Druggists Offer This Great Cure for Rheumatism.

Anybody can afford to use Rheuma to get rid of terrible rheumatism, sciatica, or pain, for it is sold by A. A. Charles and other druggists at a very small price. Your money returned if it fails.

It is wonderful how speedily this simple remedy takes hold and how soon muscles limber up and swollen joints come down to normal. It is the best remedy you can find to drive rheumatic poison from the system and bring back health to misery-racked bodies.

I had rheumatism for a long while, and was not cured until I used Rheuma. My advice to those suffering from rheumatism is to use this great remedy, as I believe it will effect a cure in any case.—C. B. Lamm, Sales, W. Va.

Rheuma is also good for lumbago, neuritis, neuralgia, and kidney troubles. It gets right down to the seat of trouble and removes the cause.—Adv.

HOW RESINOL
CLEARS AWAY
UGLY PIMPLES

It is so easy to get rid of pimples and blackheads with Resinol, and it costs so little, too, that anyone whose face is disfigured by these pests is foolish to keep on with useless cosmetics, or complicated "beauty treatments." See how simply it is done:

Bathe your face for several minutes with Resinol Soap and hot water, then apply a little Resinol Ointment very gently. Let this stay on ten minutes, and wash off with Resinol Soap and more hot water, finishing with a dash of cold water to close the pores. Do this once or twice a day, and you will be astonished to find how quickly the healing, anti-inflammatory Resinol ointment soothes and cleanses the pores, leaving the complexion clear and velvety.

Resinol stops itching instantly and speedily heals skin humors. Resinol Ointment and Soap sold by all druggists. For free trial size, write Dept. KK, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

The commonest precautions, however, made them pause and rest upon their oars while yet a little way from their goal.

Only an ominous silence rewarded the utmost efforts of their straining senses; no sound was audible other than the gentle whine of an unengaged block; nothing was visible beyond the sinister glare of that almost stationary green lantern.

"What think?" Barcus inquired in a dubious undertone.

"No telling," Alan replied in the same manner. "All a chance."

"You've got that gun handy?"—with reference to the rifle of which they had despoiled the victim of the sky's ill-faith.

"Here."

"Then—let's go to it! Give way!"

A dozen lusty strokes brought them alongside the schooner, and as the dory scraped the waist of the larger vessel the two young men dropped oars, rose, and seizing the low gunwale, lifted themselves to the deck.

Nothing opposed them; the deck was a smooth expanse of planks, the figurehead of other footsteps than their own, the schooner an silent as only a becalmed ship can be.

Without further consultation, Alan leapt quickly aft and down the companionway to the cabin, where a dim light burned—a smoky lamp swinging in a metal above a cluttered table.

Of the two stateroom doors one disclosed an empty cabin, the other was locked.

Trying the handle roughly, Alan fancied he heard a sound within. Pausing, he called, with a thrill of fearful hope.

"Hello, in there!"

The response was a cry of incredulous delight: "Alan!"

By way of answer Alan hurried himself bodily against the door. At the second impact of shoulders backed by a hundred and eighty pounds of solid flesh and determination, the lock splintered away from its socket, the door flew open with a bang—and Alan into the room with a cry: "Rose!"

His sweetheart met him half-way, her arms uplifted, her countenance transfused.

And Mr. Barcus turned and slowly ascended the companionway, his nose wrinkled with mingling.

"Blest if I know how he thinks he can tell 'em apart," he remarked. "Not that I blame him for taking a chance; it wouldn't pain me any to find out I'd kissed the wrong girl by mistake—not, that is, unless she didn't care for my technique."

"In that case," he allowed, "I guess the sequel would be apt to prove tolerable agonizing."

Some ten minutes later a hall from the deck broke the embrace of the lovers.

"Follow there! I say—Law!—wind a-coming!"

"Right! Half a minute!"

But that stipulated delay was several times multiplied before Alan showed up on deck to find Barcus bending a laborious back to the companion.

"Lead a hand, can't you?" Barcus complained, blowing heavily. "I didn't interrupt your amours just to get an audience. The sooner we get this anchor in—"

Alan checked him with a hand on his arm. "What's that?" he demanded in a tone tense with apprehension.

The muffled running of a heavy-duty marine motor drifted down on the wings of the sluggish wind.

"Don't ask me—I'm afraid to guess!"

"But they couldn't possibly!"

"Since when did you set up to be a judge of possibilities? Nothing probable ever happened to you in all your young life—so far as I can make out. As for me—I know there are at least two life-saving stations on Nantuxet, both with modern equipment—motor life-boats and all; and nothing will ever persuade me that such a pack of wolves would stick at breaking in and cutting one of the same. It's as likely as not—only more so. Our present business is to get 'em out of here—and not advertise our exit, either. Take that port light in and down it, while I do the same by the starboard. Then duck below, warn your Dulcinea, and put out the cabin lamp. That way—if this blackness and our bull-dog only holds—we may manage an evasion."

There followed an exceedingly busy quarter of an hour for two constrained in pitch darkness to grope their way about the decks and familiarize themselves with the illusory presence of a strange two-masted, New-England boat, the end of that period found the schooner with canvas full and sheets taut, a good westerly breeze abeam, swiftly weaving a wake southward—the light on Monomoy point watching her curiously from over the starboard beam.

"Hear anything more of that power boat?" Alan asked, joining Barcus by the wheel.

"Nothing—wind too fresh. Make yourself easy on the soft side of a plank here. I'll land you a kick in the slats when so minded—or when it's your trick at the wheel."

With a chuckle, Alan obediently stretched himself out on the deck.

"I say—Law!"

"Well?"

"You seem pretty easy in your mind about this young woman below. 'Eg-me, she's the same that tried to send me to Davy Jones' locker. How does she explain her presence aboard?"

"Much as I surmised," Alan replied. "I fancy they chloroformed her while she slept in that hotel in Portland. Whether or no, Rose woke up in a closed motor car—bound and gagged, of course—and was brought aboard at Gloucester about midnight."

"Simple when you know how," Barcus commented. "Of course, I always did say that truth was a stranger to fiction. Cuddle down, now, and I'll talk you insensible."

His accents already merging in with the swish of the longside waves, the bubbling of the wake, and the many-toned composite voice of the ship in being, unconsciousness like a cloud descended upon Alan's overwrought faculties.

He woke mutinously, with a yawn and a shiver in the gray of a lurid daybreak, to find that fog pressed heavily upon the face of the waters, a mist so thick that from the stern the waist of the vessel was almost invisible, the bows completely so.

Barcus stood over him, at the wheel, fairly reeling with weariness, his eyes blood-shot, swollen, and half-closed in a face like a mask of fatigue.

"Can't keep this up much longer," he apologized thickly; "stood it about as long as I can. Take your trick and give me forty winks."

Grateful solicitude brought Alan instantly to his side, though he himself was sluggish and stiff and sore in all his limbs.

"You're a brick!" he protested. "Why didn't you call me sooner?"

"No good; I knew the way—you didn't. That is, I did until this accursed fog closed down a couple of hours ago. Now—God knows where they had sought out one of the life-saving stations on Nantuxet beach, appropriated its power-driven lifeboat and renewed the pursuit, if ever they heard that horn there would beyond question be the devil to pay!

The loneliness of his vigil was eventually relieved by the appearance on deck of the woman Alan loved.

The tableau that greeted her vision as she emerged from the companionway, of the haggard, unshaven wretch at the wheel and the other who lay at his feet, where he had fallen, in a stupor of fatigue, instantly wrung from Rose a little cry of solidarity. And she was quick to do what little she could to alleviate their discomfort. For Barcus she fetched a pillow and blanket from the cabin, and this one suffered her ministrations without once rousing from his slumbers. Then hastening forward, she got the galley fire going and prepared a makeshift breakfast for her half-famished lover.

Warm food and hot coffee—such as they were—lending a little tone to Alan's spirits, he was presently able to discuss their situation with some optimism. Yet nothing could gloss the fact that the problem confronting them was one whose solution baffled their utmost ingenuity—one the simple contemplation of which taxed their courage and intelligence to the extreme.

He summed up: "I can't see anything for it but father and Judith are determined to have my scalp, and I'm hanged if I can see how to protect myself without taking a leaf out of their books. What I'm most afraid of is that some time I may forget it's a woman I'm defending myself against. When a fellow's fighting for his very life he can't always stop to calculate the weight of his blows."

The young man sighed, shook his head, laughed uncertainly, and held her closer to him. "Don't fear; I'll find some way out without injuring either of them. I promise you that!"

He scanned the pledge upon her lips. And in that moment of their oblivion to the world from some point forward a muffled crash sounded simultaneously with the dull shock of a collision with a smaller vessel, and a strange voice cried out with an accent of high exultation.

Before either Alan or the girl could disengage the decks rang loud with a rush of booted feet pounding aft.

The figures of the boarding party were already taking shape through the fog as Alan sprang toward the companionway to fetch the rifle. And in this action his feet slipped on planks greasy with moisture deposited by the overcharged atmosphere. He went down with a stumbling thump, and an instant later two men fell bodily upon him—active, strong fellows in the dress of fishermen. He was suffered to rise only as a prisoner, helpless in the grasp of two pairs of powerful hands.

He saw Barcus, rudely roused and still dumb with sleepy confusion, in no better case—jerked to his feet and held captive by two more fishermen. A fifth had taken charge of Rose, clamping her wrists in the vise of one big hand.

The sixth and sole other member of the boarding party, likewise in the rough-and-ready garb of a fisherman, was Judith Trine.

Down the side a heavy life-boat ground its way astern, the loose end of its painter slipping over the rail even as Alan caught sight of it. (So it seemed Barcus had guessed ahead-of-ly!)

Observing this, one of the men in charge of Alan made as if to leave him to the other, addressing Judith for permission to prevent the loss of the lifeboat. She stopped him with a peremptory gesture.

"No—let it go. We're better off without it. Hold that man fast till I fetch a rope. We'll make sure of them both this time!"

Straining forward in the grasp of her guard, Rose implored her sister: "Judith, in pity's name, think what you are doing!"

"Hold your tongue!" Judith snapped viciously. "Another whimper out of you, and I'll let you gagged!"

The balance of her threat, though accompanied by the exhibition of an automatic pistol, was drowned out by the sudden roar of a steamship fog-signal, so close aboard that it seemed almost to emanate from the forepart of the schooner herself.

As it was answered by shrill and hoarse cries of terror or of warning from a dozen throats, Alan found himself released, his captors leaping for their lives to the ladder.

He caught an instantaneous glimpse of the knife-like bow of a great steamer towering above the two-masted—sweeping toward it at a speed which raised a smart jet of white under the outwater.

Someone aboard the schooner, with the voice of a stentor, bellowed a terrified appeal:

"Stop your engines! Shut off your propeller! Stop your—"

Then, like the wrath of God, the steamship overwhelmed the lesser ship; its bow seemed to slice through the schooner as a knife through cheese. And the two halves were fairly driven under water by the frightful force of the blow.

Thunders deafening him, Alan was hurled bodily through the air fully twenty feet.

When he came up he struck out at random, blindly tormented by the vision of Rose caught in the snarl of that gigantic wheel, drawn under, crushed and mangled by the propeller of the vast bulk whose flank was sliding past, like the face of a cliff, ten yards behind his shoulders.

Aware of several dark objects dotting the surface within a radius of several yards, he swam for the nearest; the head was a woman's, the face turned toward him; the face of Rose.

He gasped wildly: "Keep cool! Don't struggle! Put one hand on my shoulder and—"

What happened then was never quite clear to him; he only knew that he was forced to fight for his very life—that the woman, as soon as he came within reach, flung herself upon him like some maddened animal, clutching we are—by my reckoning, somewhere in Nantuxet sound, west of Monomoy."

Grasping a small brass handle affixed to the wheel box, he jerked it sharply three times, and the automatic horn blared raucously a threefold response up forward.

"Keep that going," he begged, "three blasts in a row and a minute interval—and if the devil takes care of his own we may possibly escape being run down."

With a sigh, relinquishing the wheel, he collapsed upon the deck and was almost instantly asleep.

The wind had fallen until barely enough air stirred in keep way on the vessel; she moved in silence, a spectral ship upon a spectral sea of long only awails and the complexion of lead. Hither and yon in the obscurity, fog-signals of other shipping sounded a concert of discordance—the man-power horn of a catboat crying the warning back to the deep-throated whistle of a coastwise steamship and the impetuous drumming of a motor-boat's exhaust with the ruffler cut out.

This last boxed the compass, sounding now near, now far, though the complaints of other shipping diminished in volume and died away in the distance, giving place to others still, the phut-phut of that motor was never altogether lost; it at times it faded, it seemed certain always to return in even louder volume.

Vainly straining his vision against the blank pallor of the encompassing fog, Alan wondered, worried, dreaded! At irregular intervals, starting from preoccupation, he would manipulate the brass pull on the wheel-box, provoking the horn's stuttering blasts of protest. But the need for unremitting vigilance and exercise of the fog-signal failed none the less to reconcile Alan to that blatant clamor which so widely and so hideously advertised their whereabouts.

If there were anything still to be feared from Judith and her crew—if, for instance, as Barcus had suggested,

The figures of the boarding party were already taking shape through the fog as Alan sprang toward the companionway to fetch the rifle. STEEL BUSINESS STILL LAGS;
EXPORT OUTLOOK BRIGHTER

Domestic Market Shows Dwindling Orders; Canada a Good Buyer; Exportation Expected.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—The American Metal Market and Daily Iron & Steel Report will review the steel and iron situation tomorrow as follows:
There is no sign yet of any improvement in the iron and steel trade, except that export business is decidedly better. The Steel Corporation last week definitely ordered about 50,000 tons of export business, a considerable part of this being business which had been practically closed with a few details left to be arranged. Canadian trade in particular is looking up. South America is still a complete disappointment. Following our report of a week ago that a practical embargo had been placed upon galvanneal sheet exports from England comes definite information from a high source that the English government is about to place orders for upwards of 100,000 tons of galvanneal sheets for barracks for winter quarters, an incident that may stimulate our sheet export trade.

In the domestic market both new building and remodeling have dwindled further, except that there has been a slight improvement in a few commodities in the past few days owing to the expiration of certain contracts with buyers who have hitherto placed contracts for four to six months. The wire mills have received orders of the lowest priced material, thus based on $1.50 for net steel sheet which cannot be filled after today. The throwing of the business back upon the later contract price of $1.41 a ton under the present quoted price.

FERRO-MANGANESE EMBARGO.

Russia Raises Restriction on Exports of Ferro-Manganese. Cable address from London, Friday, states that the Russian government has raised the embargo on exports of ferro-manganese which it imposed about a month ago. The effect of this action upon the American situation is uncertain, because of the doubtful condition on the Black Sea.

Three cargoes of ferro-manganese, two of them for the Pennsylvania and California Steel companies, which were chartered from Russia, and one for the United States Steel Corporation, from Brazil, have reached eastern ports.

The ferro-manganese market is quiet, with local markets still quoting $30, seaboard.

WESTERN STEEL CAR.

Force at Hegewisch Plant Throated to Meet Rush of Orders.

The Western Steel Car & Foundry Company has announced a rush of orders necessitating the working force of its plant at Hegewisch, a suburb of Chicago. The force of the plant was increased from 2,500 to 500 men a week ago because of lack of business.

The orders include a repair job of 2,500 Nickel and steel cars for the Pullman & Ohio cars the building of 100 new box cars for the Pullman, Lackawanna & Western, 1,000 new cars for the P. & N. and 2,000 box cars for the Illinois Central.

Men of Connellsville—

These shivery mornings and evenings it makes one feel—and look—most uncomfortable without a wrap.

This is between seasons when the regular winter overcoat, and the year 'round raincoat are hardly practical.

So, the style-makers have come forward with just the thing for present and later wear

THE BALMACAN

A warm, smartly styled, rain proofed coat without weight. Lengths are 45 inches and more. The texture is soft as fleece, foreign-loomed, plain of color or in color mixtures. The collar is high and snug, or shawl, and the sleeves are kimono-fashion. The coat is loose, dressy, slightly flared and fully protective—and in a style different from that of any other season.

Prices start at $15.

Our suits for men and boys are "different", distinctive, guaranteed to serve, and priced no higher than Kinds not so good. Investigate.

On Some of These New Waists

THE EMBROIDERED DESIGNS ARE UNUSUAL. MANY NEW STYLES AT 98c

"Twas our good fortune, and yours, that we came upon a waist maker with pretty styles at a moderate price. The textures are first-class and perfect; the making exceptional.

We've not had these waists long—nor previously advertised them, but women have been snapping them off the display table at a great rate.

The textures are cotton crepe in plain and fancy weaves, among them the popular mid-effect; flowered voiles with the neat buds in delicate tulle; and plain lawn, French embroidered and lace-trimmed. The models have the new long sleeves, set in, and Gladstone collars of self material. One style has a vestee of white tulle.

—And, about eight styles in voiles of fine weave, all over and French embroidery, decorated, at 1.95
